Who should invest?

Individual investors

- ▶ Investors aiming to generate income over a short horizon; suitable for parking surplus, upcoming expenses, and laddering near-term cash flows.
- ▶ It can add fixed-income stability to equity-heavy portfolios while keeping duration contained.
- ▶ Investors transitioning between asset classes: Works well as a parking option when moving from equity to debt or waiting to deploy money elsewhere.
- ▶ The Finance Act, 2025 revisions in taxation have notably enhanced the appeal of debt mutual funds for investors with annual taxable income of up to ₹12 lakh*

Institutional investors

- ▶ Treasury & Liquidity Management: Can be used to match short-term liabilities, fund seasonal working-capital needs, and construct rolling ladders.
- ▶ Seasonality awareness: Around quarterly tax outflows or year end (e.g., Mar), system liquidity can tighten creating windows to capture short-tenor opportunities.

*Tax treatment of gains from debt mutual funds is subject to applicable law and individual circumstances. Taxpayers with total taxable income up to ₹12,00,000, net tax liability on such gains may be nil after applying the rebate under Section 87A (Income Tax Act), where conditions are met.

Taxation benefit under new tax regime for individuals

As per the Income tax Act, under new tax regime, any individual with a taxable income upto INR 12 lakh will have zero tax liability
